The public involvement process is one of the most important components of any project.

The Baltimore District team of public involvement specialists is highly experienced in developing and managing programs to inform and involve the public in sensitive issues. Our team is well-versed in all facets of agency coordination, and is skilled in meeting and workshop design and developing public information brochures, fact sheets, questionnaires, surveys, verbal briefings, and presentations.

The Baltimore District can not only advise your agency's team on required public involvement activities, but can assist your installation, agency, or locality in creating and maintaining a long-term public relations program designed to generate good relationships with the public at large. Additionally, we can prepare application packages for DoD and Army environmental awards programs. Our team can design programs to suit any need and any age from coloring books, to lectures, to brochures, to public information meetings and workshops.
